Willow's story

This 10 year old girl, diagnosed with Alopecia totalis (complete hair loss from the scalp) and subsequently Alopecia universalis (rapid loss of all body hair including eyebrows and eyelashes) was told by specialists that her chance of recovery was nil.

Willow was completely bald with absolutely no body hair. Over several years, her parents sought help for her from both conventional and natural healthcare practitioners. Willow tried many different treatments and hair regrowth products without any obvious benefit.

In February 2010, Willow's mother Maria was advised by a naturopath to give her the Fusion Health treatment outlined below and within two weeks her eyebrow hair started to grow back. This was quickly followed by a patch of regrowth at the front of her head, then the appearance of small white hairs all over her head. By March 2010, her hair had grown to a length of 4 cm and was starting to develop colour.

Chinese medicine

Alopecia involves hair loss on the scalp (A. totalis) and total body hair including eyebrows and eyelashes (A. universalis).

Alopecia universalis is the most severe form of alopecia areata (spot baldness of the scalp), with an incidence of 1 in 100,000 individuals. It can occur at any age, and Western medicine believes it is caused by an autoimmune disorder.

In Chinese medicine, hair loss (in general) and alopecia specifically is commonly associated with stagnant or deficient Liver Blood, which normally nourishes the scalp and hair, and also to constrained Liver Qi, which 'leads the Blood' in its passage around the body.

Fusion Health Women's Balance nourishes the Blood and invigorates the Qi and Liver Blood to relieve stagnation. These mechanisms help explain the dramatic hair regrowth experienced by people taking Women's Balance for Alopecia totalis and universalis.
